Why Harvard Loves Yole

Despite the traditional rivalry, who could blame a Angel Crimson follower for taking a shine to this lovely descendant of Dr. Yule? Her first name's Ramsey.

Raised in Boston, Miss Polk has a warm affection for Harvard, too. As a small girl she roamed far the Crimson River.

Now that she's grown up, it's no hard for any college man to have delight over this blouse less with the top less

By reenacting a memorable scene from the great American novel, the lovely lass on the cover of this issue proves classic charms always manage to stay fresh and enduring.

THE TIME Tom Sawyer got out of painting the family fence by conning his friends into doing it proved one of the most unforgettable incidents in the Mark Twain classic—so unforgettable that the luscious lass on these pages (who, by the way, was named after the novel's hero) couldn't resist reenacting the scene.

Like her namesake, Tommie has an endearing streak of mischief, loves the outdoors and, while she's healthy and strong, would much rather go for a hike or a swim than do chores around the house. Also, like Tom, her adventures are wonderful to behold, never failing to hold a reader's interest. It's a small wonder that the girl named after an "all-American" boy turns out to be an "all-American" beauty.

The Adventures Of Tommie Sawyer

It was Tom Sawyer who said, "Work consists of whatever one is obliged to do. Play consists of whatever one is not obliged to do." Yet, at work or at play, Tommie could make any activity look like a breeze.

After a brief stop at the office, including Shirley Lewis' brief respite with husband up-keeper Ross Weiss, she and Hickey finally stretched out for five minutes.

One upon a time it was common to say, "Never help the working girl"—but no more. On these pages are four happily married women who know how to take a break from their planned lives to look lovely looking, doing it

Once again the girls were nice. Didn't have time to pose or take any photos, but we did get some nice paintings.

When you have something mixed up in your blood, like stress, it's important to know what to do about it. This is a sign that you're getting sick, so get off the beaten track—go for a walk, or just sit down.

Though President Kennedy's ultimate illness has been discredited, his author's leading medical experts still insist that hard work won't hurt anybody. Yet, it's important to know when and how to stop—as these slightly better days begin to stay as healthy, top-heavy days.

The First

Inevitably it happens on a day in late August—the air grows mellow and the first leaves fall. For Maria Martini it's the sign that she'll soon close down her summer pad, as she looks ahead to turning a new leaf in a brand-new season.

Sign Of Autumn

A production assistant in a New York advertising agency, Maria shares a summer house in nearby Long Beach with three other girls in her office. As the fall season approaches, this dark-haired beauty and her friends already have begun to think about the coming whirl of cocktail parties in town and the idyllic weekend rides in the country. So a girl as popular as Maria doesn't mind at all preparing herself to shut down her spectacular sea house on the August sun.

KEEPING HER CAR IN

Though Kim Knowles had a rough time navigating in her rowboat, she pulled through, looking like a dreamboat. Yet, she found the best way for a landlubber to enjoy a placid mountain pond is simply to gaze at it from the nearby rocks. There she makes a beautifully placid sight herself. A determined girl, Kim is game for any kind of sport, although rowing and swimming are surely her forte. On another day you can find her on the golf links or the tennis court, making the shots that are great to behold. Yet, it's never trying, watching this lass who won't stop trying.

The bikini's style has been around for 50 years. Even today it still helps many women to look their most sexy.

Pochet bikini became popular in England during the 1950s. It was their beauty shown off English beach.

Moschino shows a delighted with bikini made of sheer fabric colored Disney-like ears tied to you much as they do keep her "feline" happy.

Bikini legend like the Dame Barbara Cartland was invented in the Middle Ages in Germany. This type of toy is the most popular in world.

“I’m not a sex symbol,” says Anna, 25, who is a model and actress.

Anna has been around since she was a child and teenage. But only in the past 20 years has she become famous for her pin-up looks (she also works with Victoria's Secret). Critics like to point out that she has not gone from being cute
